tions, but remains invisible to the audience. Mag-rite II grid also attracts magnets for customized, creative presentations. Unique ferrous powdered vinyl allows the surface to remain flexible, yet permits the use of magnetic lettering and graphics and offers the user the opportunity to hang posters and charts. The dry erase top film makes dry erase writing easy to read and easy to erase. Each of Walltalkers presentation wallcoverings creates a virtually seamless wall-to-wall and floor-to-ceiling presentation surface that provide high-impact communications, as well as high-style décor.

Weathered Stone is a handmade stone replica covering for various surfaces, including walls, countertops, floors, and furniture. It has a fabric backing and the texture is hand-applied using a specially developed mud mixture. The product is then sealed for durability and to make installation easy. Finally, color is applied by hand. Unlike many wall coverings, Weathered Stone is repairable. The grout can repair small nicks and dings, and if there is any major wall damage you can replace an entire piece and re-grout it. There is a natural color variation between panels so even from different dye lots the panels usually work. To become a Certified Weathered Stone Installer the company offers a one day 8 hour course for wall certification. The classes are divided into four parts: Layout and Theory; Installation and Handling; Grout and Finishing; and Estimating and Pricing. Installers also walk away with sample books, marketing material and a website listing with password-protected access to technical data pertaining to Weathered Stone.
